PRESENTATION

As part of their partnership, the Centre for the Prevention of Radicalization Leading to Violence (CPRLV) and the Roméo Dallaire Child Soldiers Initiative have developed a pedagogical tool for supporting the analysis of situations of radicalization leading to violence. Built on scientific literature and situations handled by the CPRLV, Hexagon's aim is to improve understanding of situations of radicalization leading to violence within a training framework, as well as fostering exploration of the various facets of this issue in the context of multidisciplinary practice.

Hexagon is designed to help social workers, community workers, health care professionals, police officers, teachers, researchers and more to reflect upon complex situations more simply, all the while facilitating learning from complementary perspectives and expertise. With better understanding comes better prevention!
