Understanding, Recognizing, and Preventing, Radicalization Leading to Violence

This training program, delivered by the Centre for the Prevention of Radicalization Leading to Violence (CPRLV) to University of Siena students, will enable participants to understand the characteristics of different types of violent radicalization (right-wing, left-wing, politico-religious and single-issue extremism). The training will allow participants to recognize and understand behaviours and situations contributing to violent radicalization in various contexts; enable participants to identify risk and protection factors for violent radicalization, while educating participants in appropriate attitudes, forms of intervention or administrative procedures for dealing with situations involving radicalization in various organizational and social contexts.

TIME: 2pm to 6pm CET
